DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 1-11 and 14-20 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Anderson (US 5,096,049) in view of Larsen (US 3,770,914) and further in view of Hernandez, Jr (US 6,871,861).

Anderson discloses an elongated platform, which has a track thereon. The Examiner has interpreted the ground surface to be a platform for the device. A carrier member 21 is made up of a top and bottom surface with wheels on the bottom surface, which engage first and second tracks 11, 12 located on the platform. The device is further comprised of an electric motor, which drives a chain along the length of the track on the platform. The linkages of the chain engage a hook member attached to the carrier in order to propel the carrier along the track from a starting point to a terminal point and back. The motor has a control switch mounted on it to operate the device.

Anderson discloses a carrier device as described above. However, Anderson does not disclose the use of a remote control to operate the carrier device. Larsen discloses a cart operated by remote control. It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill to have applied a remote control to the carrier device of Anderson in order to make it easier for the user to operate the carrier from inside a building or in the event the user is unable to access the motor for physical reasons.

Anderson discloses a carrier device as described above. However, Anderson does not disclose a cushion mounted on the top surface of the carrier. Hernandez, Jr discloses a cart having cushions on it for accommodating a person to sit, kneel or lay down. It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art to have applied a cushion like that of Hernandez, Jr to the carrier of Anderson in order to accommodate a person should they need to move along on the carrier with the objects to be transported so as to move them off of the carrier if needed.

Allowable Subject Matter

Claims 12 and 13 are objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.
